

Diploma thesis Lobbying of the Czech Non-profit Organizations in the Policy-Making Process on the National and European Level focuses on the Czech non-profit organizations' possibilities to lobby for their interests on the national and European level. This thesis gives a basic idea about policy and decision-making processes and about the decision-makers. It describes forms where and how can politicians', public servants'/European officers' decisions intersect with the aims of non-profit organizations. Also this thesis focuses on quality of interactions between the Czech non-profit sector and the Czech/European political power. It also tries to identify weak places which cause communication failures between both sides.